Course details

The course will begin with a health and safety awareness brief, which will then be followed by an introduction to some basic techniques and technical data on glass.

Half day course

This will cover the basics of glass cutting and also looking at different types of glass available. The aim of these taster sessions is to allow you to complete a couple of small pieces. The cost of firing and posting of completed pieces is included in the cost.

Full day course

This will allow you more time to develop your skills and experiment.

A full day course can be spread over two half days which would allow you to see how fired pieces can be finished.

The cost will cover the cost of small pieces of glass, firing and postage, larger projects will be charged extra on top of the course fee.

Half day course £40

Full day course £75

Hourly tuition is available at an hourly rate of £15.

Refreshments will be provided and Lunch on full day courses.
